BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Allies Protest Against Huns Carrying War Materials Over Limburg Line.

Amsterdam, Aug. 24.—Economic difficulties, the controversy with Germany over the sinking of the Dutch steamer Koningin Regentes, and the controversy over the German use of the Limburg railway are placing Holland once more on the brink of war. Germany seems bent on eventually forcing the nation into the arms of the Entente so that she can occupy its eastern frontier and exploit its commercial advantages.

Hope of reaching an agreement with Germany over the food situation and the concessions permitting the Huns use of the railway through Dutch Limburg into Belgium had just begun to mollify the situation when the sinking of the Koningin Regentes created a crisis which has not yet been weathered.

A misunderstanding has now arisen between Holland and the Allies, as to the use of the Limburg railway, which puts the little nation between two fires.

Holland had agreed that Germany would be permitted to transport nothing but nonmilitary goods over the Limburg railway. Foreign Minister London understood this to mean that all goods other than arms, ammunition, airplanes, military equipment, etc., could be carried over the road, and entered into an agreement with Germany to this effect.

The Allied Governments have now made representatives to the Dutch Government protesting against the transit of such articles as timber, ores, barbed wire, hay and straw, which there is reason to believe, are intended for military purposes. If Holland keep her agreement with Germany, therefore, she displeases the Allies; if she doesn't she displeases Germany.

Even if no military supplies were transported across Dutch Limburg, the use of the route for direct communication with Antwerp greatly relieves the strain on the German railways farther south, which can be used for the moving of troops and military supplies. It is clear, therefore, that, unwillingly and perhaps unwittingly, the Dutch have enabled the Germans to win an important victory.

Holland is now almost completely shut off by sea from the rest of the world and relies on Germany for much of her industrial supplies, exporting vegetables and other food-stuffs in exchange. The economic agreement under which these exchanges were made expired last April and has not been renewed, so the Dutch may have to turn to the Allies for supplies through the war zone.

This situation coupled with the crisis over the torpedoing of Dutch ships and the railway controversy, represents a powder mine which may at any time blow up and force Holland into the war on the side of the Entente.

FOCH'S TRIBUTE TO BIBLE

Best Preparation For Soldiers, French Marshal Writes.

New York, Aug. 23.—"The Bible is certainly the best preparation that you can give to an American soldier going into battle to sustain his magnificent ideal and faith," writes Marshal Foch in a letter to the American Bible Society, in appreciation of nearly 250,000 copies of the Scriptures distributed among soldiers abroad. The society is also supplying thousands of copies every week to men in the embarkation camps just before they go to the other side.

"The fine victories of the past weeks have definitely decided the fortunes of war," says M. Clemenceau, the French premier, in a message yesterday thanking the departmental councils which voted congratulations to the government on the trend of the war.
